South Haven hires new city clerk Brittany Abrams

By James Windell

The City of South Haven has a new City Clerk after the City Council approved the hiring of Brittany Abrams at the May 18, 2026, regular meeting.

The City has been operating without a City Clerk since April 30, 2026, when Megan Kiker resigned after serving for six years as a City employee.

Brittany Abrams has 12 years' experience working in a municipal government and she currently serves as the Parks and Recreation Office Manager at the Village of Romeoville in Illinois. Prior to that, she served as the Administrative Clerk at Lake County Forest Preserves, and as the Economic Development Coordinator and Office Administrator at the Village of Justice.

According to a press release sent out by Kate Hosier, the South Haven City Manager, and HR Director Kim Wise, Abrams in her various roles has served as staff liaison to Boards, and has prepared resolutions, agendas, agenda packets, and meeting minutes. She has also assisted with Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests, budget preparations, payroll processing, Human Resources record keeping, and organizing various community events.

Abrams holds a Bachelor of Science in Recreation, Park and Tourism Administration with a minor in Art and Outdoor Leadership from Western Illinois University. Although she currently works in Illinois, Ms. Abrams owns a home in southwest Michigan, and she is excited about working and living in southwest Michigan full-time.

The South Haven City Council approved the hiring of Abrams as a Consent Agenda item without any discussion. With the approval of the City Council, Abrams will begin her employment as City Clerk on Monday, June 8, 2026.

Senior actors find a home at Readers Theater

By James Windell

Sherry Saenz loves being an actor.

"What I enjoy most about being in plays is the ability to step into someone else's story and to help bring that story to life," says the South Haven resident. "Mainly, I enjoy the challenge of getting out of my own head to bring a character to life and pushing myself as an actor and continuing to learn new things with every production."

That's why Saenz has been involved with the South Haven Readers Theater since Linda LaRocque brought it to Senior Services of Van Buren County more than 15 years ago. The Seniors Readers Theater is a community performance group made up of older adults who present dramatic readings – usually humorous, nostalgic, or literary pieces – without memorizing lines or using full staging. It's designed as a low pressure, social, and creative outlet for seniors in the South Haven area.

For Jim Marcoux, who will be one of three actors in a play for their June show at Senior Services in South Haven, it's meant a great deal to hm.

"I got involved in the Reading Theater early in 2023 in response to my wife insisting I needed a distraction from the daily news and the negativity associated with it," says Marcoux.

Like most of the other nearly two dozen members of the theater group, Marcoux had no previous theater experience. "But what I did have was a lot of podium experience as a marketing and sales guru for two different fortune 500 companies before my retirement in 2003," Marcoux says.

He says that not only has it been a pleasant diversion from the news of the world, "But it's fun, especially interacting with our fellow actors, and particularly with the humorous plays, some of which have been hilarious," he says.

LaRocque, who not only runs the troupe but writes many of the plays they perform, says that the idea for the Readers Theater came about by accident.

"I was meeting with some friends many years ago," LaRocque explains, "and this one woman said she always wanted to be in the theater. She then asked me if I had any plays we could just sit around and read. So, I found some of my old plays and we did. Later, we went together to the Box Factory in St. Joseph to an audition and she asked me why we couldn't do this in South Haven."

When the Director of Senior Services heard about their idea, she invited Linda to set up a program for seniors – and the Readers Theater was born. "And the rest is history," says LaRocque.

Over the past seven years, according to LaRocque, the group has grown and so has its influence. "We perform annually for Western Michigan University, Andrews University and, most recently, the Corewell Health Residency program," she says. "They are using our various short plays as teaching tools so the student can get into the mindset of the aging to better serve them."

The Readers Theater will be showcasing their talent at a spring production of eight short plays June 5 through 7, 2026 at Senior Services. More information about tickets for this show or about joining the Readers Theater is available by contacting valoriedeichman@yahoo.com.

Following a recent rehearsal with Readers Theater director George Ebright, Laura Beckwith summed up what the Readers Theater has meant for her.

"I enjoy getting into the character and bringing them to life with all the idiosyncrasies we humans have," she says. "But I also like being with my fellow actors for the friendships that have been formed over the years. We have become a family and friends who care and love each other. That may sound like just words, but it is carried out with actions in this group. It has brought me a new way to be connected with wonderful people. I believe that we, as the Storytellers, have a mission and I like being part of accomplishing that."

South Haven City Council approves Master Plan

By James Windell

The City of South Haven's Master Plan is the city's long-range blueprint for how it should grow, develop, and invest over the next five to 20 years.

Not only is it a blueprint, but it also serves as a guide that determines how everything – from land use to infrastructure to community services – is to function.

The last Master Plan for the City was adopted by the City Council in 2018. The current revision of that Master Plan has been in the works for more than two years as it has gone back and forth from the Planning Commission to the City Council as changes and revisions were worked out.

The Michigan Planning Enabling Act, Public Act 33 of 2008, as amended, requires the Planning Commission to review the Master Plan every five years and determine whether to begin the process to adopt a new or updated plan. So, while the Master Plan for South Haven was comprehensively rewritten in 2018, the Planning Commission initiated a 2023 review in order to update the plan with a resilient, coastal community lens.

The Planning Commission sent a completed draft of the updated Master Plan to the City Council on April 21, 2025 and it was approved then for public distribution. In August, 2025, the City Council rejected the plan and adopted a statement of objections that was delivered to the Planning Commission. After a special meeting was held in January, 2026 to address the Council objections, the Planning Commission revised the Master Plan, held another public hearing, and again adopted a resolution approving the plan and recommending Council adoption of the plan. The City Council received a presentation about the updated Master Plan at the May 4, 2026 Committee of the Whole meeting, and voted to place the plan on the next regular City Council agenda for consideration of adoption.

At the May 18, 2026 council meeting, the City Council was asked by the City staff to consider approval of Resolution 2026-18, a resolution to adopt the 2026 Master Plan.

City Manager Kate Hosier expressed confidence that the revisions were correct, and she said she hoped the council was ready to pass the resolution to move the Master Plan to adoption.

An immediate motion was made by Councilwoman Mary Hosley to adopt Resolution 2026-18 adopting the 2026 updates to the City of South Haven Master Plan. The motion was supported. Mayor Annie Brown called for a voice vote and the Master Plan was approved.

Various council members thanked current and prior councilmembers, the Planning Commission, and the staff for addressing concerns raised in City Council objections. The Planning Commission's special meeting on January 28, 2026, was cited as a thoughtful and dedicated discussion of the Master Plan and the objections raised by the City Council.

Council members emphasized it was time to approve the plan and highlighted positive elements for the next five years, including density objectives and erosion/coastline standards. Additional remarks noted the plan was the result of significant work and Councilman Tom Capps said that while the Master Plan is not perfect it was ready for approval.

The Master Plan, as well as previous Master Plans, can be found on the City of South Haven's website in Official Documents.

Paw Paw community remembers David Richardson

PAW PAW - The Paw Paw community came together on Thursday May 14, to remember a man who was born and raised in Paw Paw, and who gave back in many ways to his community through serving on community government, as a 60-year-plus member of the Paw Paw Volunteer Fire Department, and as a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, Paw Paw.

David Lloyd Richardson passed away peacefully, with family at his side, in the comfort of his home on May 4, 2026. He was born at home in Paw Paw on July 3, 1931.

Richardson graduated from Paw Paw High School, then served his country in the Korean War. During Richardson's service in the Navy from 1951 to 1955, he was stationed on the USS Destroyer McKean DDR 784. During that time, he attained the rank of Machinist Mate First Class. He was awarded Korea, China and National Defense Service medals. Following his honorable discharge from the Navy, Richardson attended Michigan State University. After two years at the East Lansing college, he returned home to help his father with the family business.

When his father, Lloyd, retired, Dave took over the business that the two had built together – painting, wallpapering, and refinishing floors.

Richardson served as a member of the Paw Paw Volunteer Fire Department for more than 60 years, joining in 1960. It was eight years later when Richardson served as fire chief of the fire department. The year also marked the fire department's 100th anniversary. He was also around to celebrate the fire department's 150th anniversary.

Richardson's legacy on the fire department continues today as seen through his two sons, Kirk and Steve, and twograndsons, Kyle and Tyler, all who continue to serve on the fire department.

He was preceded in death by his wife of 61 years, Bonnie.

Richardson and his wife, Bonnie, whom he married in1964, were active members of Trinity Lutheran Church. Both volunteered in youth group leadership, while Dave served as an usher and an Elder. They were also involved in 4-H through their children.

Richardson served on the Paw Paw Village Council as a trustee or village president for nearly 20 years and as Paw Paw Township supervisor for 16 years. His many years of community service were recognized when he was inducted into the Paw Paw High School Hall of Fame in 2015.

Richardson is survived by his daughter, Christine Richardson; two sons, Kirk (Tami) Richardson and Steve (Stephanie) Richardson; five grandchildren, Kyle, Tyler, Spencer, Stuart and Samantha. He is also survived by a brother-in-law, Ronnie Essig (Bonnie's twin) and Clifford (Angela) Essig.

Siblings donate Korean War soldier statue in honor of father who recently passed

LAWRENCE - William "Bill" Sousley was a proud Air Force veteran during the Korean War. He was a member of the Lawrence American Legion Hess-Eastman Post 174 for over 50 years, according to his daughter, Kim Thompson.

During the past 20 years, Bill donated money each month to ensure that all veterans were recognized with memorials or statues in Washington, D.C. Those he was most passionate about, according to Thompson, were the WASPs (the forgotten women of World War II who transported planes to the front lines – without ammunition), the Tuskegee Airmen (America's first African-American military aviators who faced severe segregation and compiled an elite combat record), and the Korean War memorials.

According to his daughter, Bill was proud that Lawrence honored local veterans and had established the Lawrence Veterans Cemetery. "He felt that it was the best in the state and especially loved that Lawrence Township was starting to add military soldier statues to the memorial," said Thompson.

When Sousley passed away at the age of 93, his children, Thompson and Kelly Sousley, looked for a way to honor their father. Both quickly agreed that a Korean War soldier statue was the best way to honor him and the rest of the Korean War veterans.

A telephone call to Scott Earls, Lawrence Township Cemetery sexton, put Sousley's two children in touch with SVJ Creative Solutions. The company had provided the first statue honoring World War I soldiers. The two were told by SVJ Creative Solutions that it currently only had one WWI statue; however, it was for another customer. When the company learned that Sousley's children wanted to donate it during their father's funeral and military ceremony, SVJ made a telephone call to the other customer, who graciously asked that the existing statue be sold to the Sousleys and SVJ could make another for them at a later date.

The two siblings made a road trip to Kellogg, Minn. to pick up the statue. The statue was placed on a 16-foot double-axel trailer facing backwards, uncovered. The soldier statue "had their six" all the way back to Michigan. Numerous waves, horns, and a semi escort for over three hours showed that there are many patriots in this country and it was an uplifting experience for both, according to Thompson.

The statue was placed near the Korean Wall board, which lists the names of all those from Lawrence who served in the Korean War, and it was officially donated to Lawrence Township and the Lawrence American Legion Hess-Eastman Post 174, on May 16, in memory of William "Bill" Sousley and all Korean War soldiers.

LAWTON - On May 12, Lawton Village Council members received an update to work being currently done at the Lawton Public Library.

Library Director Lyn Tone said the library ceiling is finished. There were 72 cracks, and 12 leaks reported where a skylight was. The library front door is now equipped with an ADA button. She also asked about the library back wall. The village will have someone investigate it and report back to the village on the extent of the damage to the wall. The village will get back to the library once they receive an update.

Council member Judith Peterson made a motion to approve a proposal from Lawton Handyman for several renovations to the village offices for an amount not to exceed $10,000.

Council member Gail Dudek told fellow council members that she is disappointed with the plantings on Main Street by the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT), and further said that MDOT is not maintaining the plantings as promised to.

Commissioners approve levy of county-wide Parks and Recreation millage

By Paul Garrod
Staff Writer
news4garrod@gmail.com

PAW PAW - On Tuesday, May 12, Van Buren County Board of Commissioners approved a levy of a county-wide Parks and Recreation millage of .10 mill (1/10) tax levy and passed a resolution to implement the millage.

Earlier this year, the Van Buren County Parks and Recreation Commission completed and adopted the Community Park, Recreation, Open Space, and Greenway Plan 2026–2030.

The plan establishes six primary goals: preserving and maintaining county park assets; leveraging partnerships and grant opportunities; investing in universal accessibility improvements; considering creation of a parks and recreation management position or department; maintaining a comprehensive inventory of county recreational resources; and supporting local municipalities with recreation planning efforts.

Capital improvement priorities include upgrades to existing park facilities and the Hartford Kayak Launch; trail and water access improvements; natural resource conservation; signage, parking, and accessibility pathways; and future countywide recreation development projects.

To assist in funding these identified priorities, the Van Buren County Parks and Recreation Commission recommended that the Van Buren County Board of Commissioners adopt a .10 mill (1/10) tax levy.

The millage will generate approximately $460,000 to be used for the purpose of funding specific priorities, capital improvements, maintenance, and recreational initiatives identified in the Van Buren County Community Park, Recreation, Open Space, and Greenway Plan 2026-2030.

Commissioners approved the payment of $41,200 for a TruNarc Delta Analyzer, a handheld device used by law enforcement to quickly and safely identify suspected narcotics in the field.

The device operates using Raman spectroscopy, which directs a laser at a substance and analyzes how the light scatters to determine its chemical composition. This allows officers to identify drugs without opening the package, reducing exposure to hazardous substances such as fentanyl.

Key features of the device include:

- Non-contact testing through plastic or glass containers
- Rapid results, typically within seconds
- A preloaded drug library capable of identifying hundreds of controlled substances
- Data storage and reporting capabilities suitable for evidentiary use.

The device also allows for immediate printing of test results, which can be used for court proceedings.

The implementation of this device has significantly reduced the need for frequent trips to the Grand Rapids Crime Lab for narcotics testing. As a result, it saves investigators several hours of travel time each week and reduces fuel costs associated with those trips.

The Sheriff's Office applied for a grant to purchase a TruNarc Delta Analyzer for $41,200. This grant was approved, and money has been distributed for the item.

In another area, Commissioners approved that pursuant to Section 51 of the Drain code, the Van Buren County Drain Commissioner, in his discretion, may require a cash deposit to cover the estimated preliminary costs, in an amount determined by the Drain Commissioner as sufficient, associated with any application to lay out and designate a drainage district.

Commissioners approved the use of the paved county-owned parking lots adjacent to the Van Buren Youth fairgrounds - specifically those serving the Department of Health and Human Services Building and former Health Department Building - for overflow parking during the Van Buren County Youth Fair, July 20-25, outside of posted county business hours.

Van Buren Tech hosts annual mock disaster

LAWRENCE - The annual Mock Disaster, led by Van Buren Tech, the Career and Technical Education (CTE) center of Van Buen Intermediate School District (VBISD), once again demonstrated the power of hands-on, real-world learning through career and technical education.

This year's large-scale emergency simulation, held Tuesday, May 12, was a complete surprise to students and participants, creating an authentic, high-pressure training environment designed to mirror the unpredictability of real emergencies. As smoke filled the air, sirens echoed across the scene, and chaos unfolded at the fictional "Food Truck Frenzy," students from multiple Van Buren Tech programs sprang into action.

The scenario involved a drunk pizza bus driver crashing into a pole at the crowded food truck fair, triggering a chain reaction of emergencies. A turkey fryer ignited into a grease flash fire, multiple vendor booths caught fire, a domestic dispute erupted between vendors, and an undercover human trafficking operation disguised as an ice cream and candy stand added another layer of complexity for responding agencies. A medical helicopter was also dispatched to assist with emergency response efforts.

Students from numerous Van Buren Tech programs collaborated throughout the simulation, including EMT, Fire Science Academy, Law Enforcement, Patient Care, Allied Health, Cosmetology, and Culinary Arts. Cosmetology students created hyper-realistic special effects injury makeup, playing a critical role in building the authenticity of the disaster scene. Patient Care and Allied Health students assisted with patient stabilization and emergency support, while Culinary Arts students catered the event for responders, volunteers, and participants.

The event brought together students and emergency responders from across the region, allowing participants to experience coordinated, multi-agency emergency response in real time. "It's an all-discipline, scenario-based learning event, and it incorporates all of our young students and all of our area responders," said Jeromy Robertson. "It's designed to help them experience what a large-scale scenario would be."

The annual Mock Disaster, led by Van Buren Tech, the Career and Technical Education (CTE) center of Van Buen Intermediate School District (VBISD), once again demonstrated the power of hands-on, real-world learning through career and technical education.

Van Buren County Sheriff Daniel Abbott emphasized the value of exposing students to different emergency response approaches. "There were many different law enforcement agencies here, so they're not only looking at it from one agency's perspective," Abbott said. "Students get the opportunity to see how multiple agencies respond and work together during emergencies."

For students, the experience provided lessons far beyond the classroom. "This scenario really opened my eyes," said Elizabeth Shaer, who plans to attend Grand Valley State University in the fall to pursue a degree in Criminal Justice and has secured a summer internship with a local law enforcement department. "In situations like this, you have to stay focused and carry out your responsibilities. In an active emergency, the work is constant and requires your full attention. You must be prepared to make an arrest when necessary and then move on to the next task."

The Mock Disaster not only prepares students for technical careers in emergency services and healthcare but also reinforces leadership, communication, critical thinking, and decision-making under pressure. Through immersive, collaborative experiences like the Mock Disaster, Van Buren Tech continues to provide students with meaningful career-connected learning opportunities that prepare them for both college and the workforce.

Astronomer discusses dark skies and light pollution

Types of Light Pollution
1. Sky Glow – sky is lit up
2. Light Trespass – light goes where it doesn't belong
3. Glare – light shining in people's eyes
SPEAKERS SERIES OF SOUTH HAVEN

By James Windell

Light pollution, as defined by astronomer Dr. Anne Blackwell, means inappropriate or excessive use of artificial light. And light pollution happens when unshielded or poorly aimed outdoor lights send light upward. This atmospheric scattering creates "sky glow" – and that can outshine faint starlight.

So why do we light up the night sky?

According to Dr. Blackwell, who spoke to 100 people at the Speakers Series of South Haven on Thursday, May 14, 2026, we light up the night sky because of faulty assumptions.

"Research shows no clear consensus linking increased lighting with reduced crime," she told the audience at Lake Michigan College. She cited the Chicago Alley Study, conducted in 2000, which found that increased lighting coincided with increased nighttime crime in the studied alleys.

Instead of bringing special benefits to nature and humans, night-time light pollution has negative consequences on wildlife and human health. Blackwell said that birds are affected by "ALAN" – Artificial Light at Night. "Because birds migrate at night," Blackwell pointed out, "they become disoriented by artificial lights and collide with buildings or circle until exhaustion." She estimated that up to a billion birds are killed annually from building collisions.

In addition, she said that insects are also strongly impacted by ALAN. "ALAN is considered an overlooked contributor alongside habitat loss, pesticides, invasive species, and climate change for the loss of insects," she said.

Also, there are human health factors brought about by light pollution. Blackwell's remarks centered on circadian rhythm disruption and melatonin suppression, especially from blue-rich light.

Blackwell emphasized that the goal is not "no lighting," but rather "lighting with purpose and intention." She referred to South Haven's Phoenix Street lighting as "decent" and moving in the right direction. She singled out the storefront lighting at the shop Crescent Moon, on Broadway in South Haven, as "phenomenal" due to recessed and hidden bulbs as well as effective downward illumination.

She said that as an Ann Arbor resident and graduate student at the University of Michigan, she worked both with U of M and the City of Ann Arbor to adopt appropriate lighting policies and ordinances. She said she had reviewed South Haven's ordinance and praised it for its detail, especially on light trespass – light illuminating over property lines. She said she planned to share South Haven's ordinance as an example to her organization

Blackwell said that she enjoyed camping at some of Michigan's designated Dark Sky Parks and Preserves. She touted these areas, such as Headlands International Dark Sky Park, Keweenaw Dark Sky Park, and Dr. T.K. Lawless Park, as ideal environments for stargazing.

The program ended with Blackwell inviting the audience to sign up with Michigan Dark Skies, an organization to educate and inform about light pollution and its effects on wildlife and human health, at https://darkskymichigan.org.

New Paw Paw Fire truck arrives

The Paw Paw Fire Department took delivery of a new fire engine on Saturday, May 16. The new fire engine committee was formed in the summer of 2022 and included committee members Jim Jackson, Jim DeGroff, IV, Trent DeGroff, Sr., Jason Johnson, Brandon Hall, Nate Jackson and Kyle Richardson. The order was placed with E-One Fire Apparatus in April 2023. The truck's cab was built in Ocala, Fla., before being shipped to Hamburg, New York, where the rest of the truck was assembled. "A lot of planning took place in order for the needs of the department and community to be met. The department is very excited to put this engine into service as it will serve the citizens of Paw Paw for many years to come," said Paw Paw Fire Chief Kyle Richardson. OBITUARIES

Diane Grace (Hoger) Snellgrose

Diane Grace (Hoger) Snellgrose, 85, formerly of Paw Paw, Michigan, passed away peacefully on April 9, 2026, at her home in North Fort Myers, Florida.

Diane was born on August 5, 1940, in Paw Paw, Michigan, to Wayne and Harriet (Wiersba) Hoger.

She was a proud graduate of Paw Paw High School, Class of 1958. During her high school years, Diane was deeply involved in student life, serving as President of the Thespian Club, Choir President, and Vice President of her senior class. She was also a cheerleader and participated in many other activities. She cherished these memories and often spoke of them fondly.

On May 5, 1962, she married Harold Wayne Snellgrose in Paw Paw. They shared 49 years of marriage until Harold's passing in 2011.

Diane worked for the Division of Forestry in Naples and Fort Myers, Florida, for over a decade. She began as a fire tower lookout and later became a dispatcher. During her time there, she proudly portrayed Smokey the Bear at local school events and fundraisers, helping to promote fire safety. One of her favorite memories included riding in a helicopter while in costume. She loved every minute of it, despite the Florida heat and the costume's weight.

She was preceded in death by her husband; her parents; her sister, Bonnie Lou Farmer; her brothers, David Hoger and Arthur "AJ" Hoger; and her grandson, Cameron Wayne Snellgrose.

Diane is survived by her children: Jeff (Myra) Nisbet of St. Petersburg, Florida; Tim Snellgrose of Naples, Florida; Hal (Karen) Snellgrose of Carmel, California; and Jill (Chuck) Mullins of Cape Coral, Florida; her grandchildren: Jessica Wright of Tampa, Florida; Adam (Lauren) Snellgrose of Naples, Florida; Heather (Christopher) King of Cocoa, Florida; Marley Jane Nisbet of Chandler, North Carolina; Madison Snellgrose of Carmel Valley, California; Allison (Sam) Mullins of Cape Coral, Florida; and Lindsay (Jake) Mullins of Marcellus, Michigan; along with six great grandchildren and one on the way.

Her family would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to VITAS Healthcare for the compassionate care provided to Diane. The dedication of her care team, especially her nurse, meant so much to the family and created bonds that will not be forgotten.

No formal funeral service will be held. Instead, family and friends are invited to gather to celebrate the lives of Diane and her son, Tim Snellgrose, who passed away shortly after Diane on May 3, 2026. The celebration of life will be held on Saturday, June 27, 2026, from 4:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. at The Lucky Wolf in The Paw Paw Playhouse, located at 404 E. Michigan Avenue in Paw Paw, Michigan.

Please RSVP to Jill at 269-377-8856 by June 15, 2026, via text or phone call, to let us know if you can join us. Beverages and appetizers will be served.

Brian Scott Longshore

Brian Scott Longshore, 45, of Paw Paw, passed away peacefully Saturday, May 16, 2026, at Ely Manor, Allegan, after a courageously fought battle with a rare genetic disorder. He was born on Aug. 31, 1980, in Kalamazoo, Michigan, the son of Scott Longshore and Evie (Verburg) Longshore.

A true inspiration, Brian was born legally blind and diagnosed with a rare genetic disorder at a young age. Brian never let this slow him down and it certainly did not define who he truly was.

After graduating from Paw Paw High School in 2000, he worked at Lakeview Hospital in Paw Paw, owned his own home, and was independent for much of his life. Brian never complained once about his disabilities and conquered anything he put his mind to.

He loved riding his quad runner around his parents' property while growing up. He enjoyed music and could sing almost every 90s country song word for word. He also loved spending time at the beach in South Haven with his mom, helping his dad out at the Paw Paw Fire Department with spaghetti dinners and all his adventures with his Aunt Chrissy. Brian loved all animals and often enjoyed helping around his family hobby farm. As a child, he had a dog named Chance, who was his best friend for 16 years. After Chance, he adopted a Bassitt hound, Daisy, who would be his companion for several years.

Brian had the kindest heart and did not have a mean bone in his body. He had a great sense of humor and was described by his parents as "Never the problem child." Brian fought hard until the very end. He will be deeply missed but will live on as an inspiration to all who knew him.

He is survived by his parents, Scott and Evie Longshore; brother, Jake (Alexis) Longshore; sister, Ashley (Heath) Pingel; nephews, Kash and Bo Longshore and niece, Lennox Pingel, along with many aunts, uncles, and cousins.

Brian was preceded in passing by his grandparents, Maurice and Ina Longshore, Connie and Ray Arndt, Marinus "Rene" Verburg and Joann Verburg-Henry; uncles, Rene Verburg and Bud Morrow and aunt, Arlene Verburg.

Family and friends are invited to visit today (Thursday), May 21, from 5 to 7 p.m. at Adams Funeral Home, 502 W. Michigan Ave., Paw Paw. A funeral service will be held Friday, May 22, 2026, at 11:00 a.m. at the funeral home with Pastor Josh Odell officiating. Brian will be laid to rest at Almena Cemetery. Friends and family are encouraged to gather at the Paw Paw Conservation Club, 56222 30th St., Paw Paw, for a luncheon immediately following.

Memorial contributions may be directed to the SPCA of Southwest Michigan, 6955 W KL Ave., Kalamazoo, MI, 49009 and/or the Al Van Humane Society, 7591 Blue Star Highway, South Haven, MI, 49090.

Garage fire spreads to house in Columbia Twp, no one injured

Several South Haven area fire departments responded to a structure fire at 10767 53rd Street, Columbia Township of Van Buren County this morning (Tuesday).

Columbia Township firefighters were dispatched at 9:55 a.m.. Mutual aid was provided by the Bangor Community, Bloomingdale Township, Lee Township fire departments and South Haven Area Emergency Services.

The fire started in a garage and spread to the nearby residence. Firefighters successfully contained the fire to the residence.

The homeowner said the fire started when he was trying to start the engine to a boat in the garage. He said he tried unsuccessfully to extinguish the blaze with a fire extinguisher.

The occupants escaped without injury.

Van Buren EMS also responded.

Medieval circus comes to South Haven

A world of medieval mystery, high-flying acrobatics, and family-friendly comedy is coming to the Michigan Flywheelers Museum.

The Kingdom of Wonders Medieval Circus will perform four spectacular shows at 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Saturday, May 30, and Sunday, May 31, 2026.

Considered a non-traditional circus, the Kingdom of Wonders is more a theatrical "Renaissance Adventure" that ditches the traditional clowns and animals in favor of a narrative-driven experience. The show invites guests to the Queen's court to witness a battle of wits and ski

In order to make professional entertainment accessible to all, Kingdom of Wonders offers free tickets for every performance. While admission is free, it does rely on concession sales and donations to support the performers and production costs.

The comedy-based 100-minute show (includes a 15-minute intermission) is designed to captivate children and adults alike with its dazzling acrobatics, juggling acts as you follow a brave knight and his sidekick as they attempt to reclaim the kingdom from a mischievous witch and her dragon.

"We are thrilled to bring this brand-new, one-of-a-kind production to the beautiful grounds at the Michigan Flywheelers Museum," says the team at Leifland Productions. "Our goal is to create a space where every family in the community can experience the wonder of live theater, regardless of their budget."

Online reservations are highly recommended to help staff manage capacity. Seating is provided on a first-come, first-served basis, and doors open 30 minutes prior to showtime. Traditional circus treats, including popcorn and soda, will be available for purchase.

USA Triathlon championship held at Lake Arvesta

By James Windell

Nick flew in from Kansas City to enter one race event at the USA Multisport National Championships at Lake Arvesta Farms in South Haven.

He finished second in his age group for the Aquathlon – a swimming and running event –and he was very satisfied with that result. For Nick, it means that he was likely going to rank high enough for his age bracket to go to the World Multisport Championships in Edmonton, Canada in 2027.

"Many of us athletes are here to qualify for Team USA on the amateur circuit," Nick said sitting in an Adirondack chair in the sun after his event. "Competitors are trying to qualify to go to Edmonton," Nick explains, "and qualification is based on ranking." He said that in order to qualify, an athlete must finish in the top 18 in their age group. He said he's been doing the Aquathlon for 10 years.

Stephen, from San Diego, may or may not qualify for the Worlds, but he still enjoys travelling around the country and competing in the Super Sprint Duathlon – a run-bike-run event.

He said he has never been in Michigan before and he commented that he was impressed with Lake Arvesta Farms, but there are things about Michigan he wasn't thrilled with. "It's the mosquitos and the cold," the southern California native said. He said that it was too chilly to do the swimming events on the first day of the championships.

The four-day championship at Lake Arvesta Farms was put on by USA Triathlon, which is the National Governing Body for triathlon, duathlon, aquathlon, and aquabike races in the U.S. However, the championship was hosted by Tris4Health, a Michigan-based endurance event management organization that produces many of the state's major triathlons, cycling races, running events, and multisport festivals.

A Tris4Health co-owner and Race Director, Jon Conkling, estimated that more than 950 athletes from nearly every state and two other countries registered for over 2200 events. He said that Michigan has hosted a USA Triathlon National Championship previously, but this is the first USA Triathlon Multisport National Championships Festival to be held in the state.

"The general sentiment so far is that South Haven and Lake Arvesta Farms is a gem, with visitors and athletes pleasantly surprised once they arrive," Conkling said. He repeatedly praised Lake Arvesta owner Brian DeBest for being hands-on, responsive, and supportive of whatever the event needed. He also mentioned the many volunteers who helped make the venue so special for the athletes and the sponsors.

"This venue is a unique host site for athletes and families," Conkling said, "with a 'something different and unique' feel to it. Some of the positives have been live bands at night, food, ice cream, bouncy houses for kids, and a generally festive atmosphere."

On this Memorial Day

MIKE'S MUSINGS

Editor's Note: I thought I would use my space to sometimes contributor, Jeffrey Brasie. As a Vietnam veteran, he offers a movie, book and TV show that honor best those that served.

By: Jeffrey D. Brasie, M.A,

This coming Monday, May 25th Americans will reflect and honor Memorial Day. Our Canadian neighbors recognize their Memorial Day each July 1st.

According to the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) there are just under 18 million veterans. VA statistics reveal the Gulf War, Afghanistan, and Iraq age group veterans are eclipsing the living Vietnam era veterans.

I have personally visited numerous military memorials, parades, and cemeteries to render a hand salute or placed my hand over my heart for those who have served and passed. The Vietnam Wall is the most difficult for me to visit. I know two of the 58,281 names engraved in the 246-foot nine-inch granite wall.

As we prepare for Memorial Day, I would like to share with you my thoughts which I tend to believe are the best motion picture, book, and television episode honoring those who served.

Motion Picture

For many, the movies, Born on the Fourth of July, The Hurt Locker, Blackhawk Down, Saving Private Ryan, Dirty Dozen, Flags of Our Fathers, and Forrest Gump come to mind.

I tend to believe the best motion picture is the 1946 Oscar award winning film, The Best Years of Our Lives.

The film features Fredic March, Dana Andrews, and Harold Russell as three post-World War II veterans returning to their Midwest hometown. March portrays an Army sergeant who has seen combat, Andrews an Army Air Corps flight captain, and Russell a Navy petty officer who lost both of his forearms.

March struggles with PSTD (then known as shell shock) when returning to his family he hasn't seen for years and his banking profession. Andrews returns to a philanderer wife and a third level job clerking at a local drug store. Finally, Russell has adjusted to his limb loss. Nevertheless, his mother has struggled to manage her son's challenge, while his next-door neighbor and girlfriend, Wilma, loves him deeply.

It is a terrific motion picture to view especially with a Russell and Wilma's wedding scene, a blossoming new love for Andrews, and March's family and lifestyle are reunited.

The movie is available through a multitude of on-line resources and through library lending services.

The Book

My Father, My Son is a biography of Chief of Naval Operations (CNO), Admiral Elmo ("Bud") Zumwalt, Jr. co-written with John Pekkanen. The book chronicles Zumwalt's personal life and military career.

As a young petty officer, at the Pentagon on the Secretary of the Navy's public affairs staff, I had the honor of periodically seeing and interacting with the Admiral.

Zumwalt, the Navy's highest-ranking officer, faced dozens upon dozens of challenges during his CNO tenure. These ranged from the Vietnam war front, racial tensions, an aging fleet, and constantly seeking administration and Congressional support. It is relevant to note that when he was selected as CNO he was chosen over other senior level flag officers. At age 49 he was the youngest CNO ever to be appointed.

The most poignant chapter in the book is when Zumwalt talks about his Vietnam tour of duty. During this period, his son, Elmo III was a Naval lieutenant manning a gun boat on the Mekong River Delta.

From the shoreline, American troops were facing severe casualties on the Delta.

Admiral Zumwalt made the decision to use the defoliant, agent orange, to push back each side of the river shoreline by hundreds of yards. This meant the enemy could no longer hide behind the shoreline foliage nor launch their weapons against the American forces.

Years later after leaving the Navy and graduating from law school, the junior Zumwalt learned that he contracted Non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma. He died in 1988.

It is believed that the Admiral's decision to use agent orange, to save numerous troop members, may have caused his son to have died at age 42. The Admiral's grandson, Elmo IV was born with a birth defect which hinders his ability to concentrate. Other Vietnam veterans' children have also shown birth defects.

Certain aspects of this book are a challenging read of the Admiral and his son facing the consequences of agent orange.

On using agent orange, the Admiral at the time was assured by the Pentagon that the defoliate was safe to use. He commented, "I asked the right questions, but got the wrong answers."

The book is available at lending libraries or can be ordered online.

The Television Show

Television featured numerous military related series such as NCIS, China Beach, Combat, Hogan's Heroes, McHale's Navy, JAG, Seal Team, and numerous other series dating back decades.

Perhaps the best was the 11-season run of M*A*S*H. The series was filled with a variety of notable characters, hilarious situations, as well as the Korean War's difficulties and dozens of ethical issues.

As a side note, the late Harry Morgan who portrayed Colonel Sherman Potter was from Muskegon, Michigan and Corporal Max Klinger (played by Jamie Farr) is a Toledo, Ohio native.

Probably the most memorable episode for me appeared in 1980 entitled, "Death Takes a Holiday." Truly one of the best episodes and major tearjerker.

The plot has the M*A*S*H 4077 medical unit celebrating Christmas in the camp's massive mess (dining) quarters.

As the holiday festivities carry on, a severely wounded soldier, shot by a sniper, arrives at the M*A*S*H unit. The holiday party continues with the soldier quickly carried into the surgical tent.

Hawkeye (Alan Alda) and B.J. Hunnicutt (Mike Ferrell) realized the combat soldier was most certainly going to die. Their goal was to keep him alive so his family would not see him pass on Christmas day. It was a scene filled with love, tense moments, and a from the heart mission.

Head nurse, Major Margaret Houlihan (Loretta Swit) pulled a photo from the soldier's pocket which showed his wife and children. Inscribed on the photo was "To the best husband and daddy in the world; come home soon."

Colonel Potter would slip into the nearby surgical tent wearing his makeshift Santa outfit. Father John Mulcahy (William Christopher) would pray and add words of wisdom. As the solider was heading toward death, one of the Father's classic remarks was, "Christmas should be thought of as a day of birth."

The wall clock ticked towards midnight and December 26th. The soldier becomes weaker by the hour. He passes before midnight. Hawkeye slips over to the nearby clock and moves it to 12:05 a.m.

Mission accomplished – the official record had the solider from Pennsylvania pass on December 26th.

Hand salute to you, my dear brothers and sisters who served and those who gave their lives in the name of democracy and freedom.

Sheriff's Notes: National Police Week held

"This past week was National Police Week. Thank you to all the dedicated professionals not only at our office, but across this great nation. Law enforcement is truly a calling, and the ones who answer the call are a true servant in what they do. Again, I am very blessed to have the deputies at our office who serve in that role. The citizens of Van Buren County get to see every day the true professionals we have here keeping our community safe," said Van Buren County Sheriff Daniel Abbott.

Van Buren County Sheriff's Office Uniform Response handled a domestic assault in Bangor Township. "The investigation found that the suspect tried to strangle the victim during the assault. The suspect was lodged for the incident," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Our office participated in the Mock Disaster at the Van Buren Intermediate School District (VBISD) last week. Several of us were present along with numerous other law enforcement agencies, fire departments, EMS, and other agencies who would have responded that don't fall under the categories I listed. It was once again well attended, put together with realistic scenarios that play out giving the students a firsthand look at what they may deal with if they continue in the field. It's always nice to participate and help coach these kids with this, especially since some of them may end up working here at our office in the future," said Sheriff Abbott.

Deputy Cody Bingaman Earned a Life Saving Award and it was presented last week to him at the Board of Commissioners' meeting. Deputy Bingaman responded to a call in Waverly Township regarding a vehicle parked in a back yard of a residence. It was quickly determined that the 79-year-old out-of-county resident was unaccounted for. "Concern immediately was that he may have suffered a medical issue, so Deputy Bingaman deployed his canine for a track. There was also concern due to the vehicle close to a swift moving river in the area. Deputy Bingaman and K-9 Charlie tracked the individual approximately 150 yards and found him partially submerged in the river and suffering from the effects of exposure, placing him on the verge of hypothermia. Deputy Bingaman immediately entered the hazardous environment and successfully pulled the victim to safety. The individual was transported to the ER for treatment and survived the incident," said Sheriff Abbott.

Deputy Jason Erickson and Sgt. Larry Weers Earned a Sheriff's Award of Excellence for their role in the above incident. "Deputy Erickson was first on scene; he quickly realized the seriousness of the situation and immediately got the needed resources rolling while not contaminating the scene. Sgt. Weers put up a drone immediately and coordinated with the ground search efforts. With his efforts and coordinating with the K-9 track going toward the victim's location, things were able to be expedited," said Sheriff Abbott.

"I was honored to participate in a fund-raising event "Lunch with the Sheriff" put on by St. Mary's Catholic School. I had a great time taking the high bidder out to lunch with her daughter. After lunch, I gave them a tour of our overall office, showed them patrol cars and equipment, and explained the overall operations of the office while giving them a tour. Thank you to all the staff members who were involved, giving insight as well when we came to their office/work area. Just so there's no question where the money came from to pay for the lunch, I paid for it out of my personal account (no county tax dollars were used)," said Sheriff Abbott.

"Our Narcotic detectives received information about a location in Kalamazoo County of a fugitive they were searching for. Detectives contacted Kalamazoo County Sheriff's Office and deputies from there worked in conjunction with our detectives to locate the suspect. The suspect was located and arrested without incident. The suspect had drug paraphernalia on his person during arrest, so he now faces potentially more charges. He also had warrants out to Kalamazoo County and Portage Department of Public Safety for failure to appear. He was lodged at our jail with holds placed on him for the warrants out of the other agencies," said Sheriff Abbott.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

In January, during Winter Storm Fern, the operator of Michigan's grid did something it rarely does. It told an entire region to cut back on electricity, in the middle of a deep freeze, because the system was running short of margin. The lights stayed on, but the people whose job is keeping them on were openly warning they might not be able to.

That night wasn't bad luck. It was the predictable result of an energy policy written in Lansing by people who treated reliability as someone else's problem and affordability as an outdated idea.

Last week, the Michigan House said never again.

We passed Project Lighthouse, and we did it for the people who actually pay the bills. Not the activists. Not the consultants who drew up the mandates. The family opening an electric bill higher than they planned for, in an economy where everything already costs too much.

For years, families were told to accept a false choice: pay more, get less, and call it clean. Question the bill in your hand and you were branded an enemy of clean energy. That was always backwards. Wanting power you can afford and count on isn't hostility to clean energy. It's the only honest test of any energy plan, and the people who wrote these mandates couldn't pass it. The family doing the math at the kitchen table was never the extremist. The people who wrote mandates on a political timeline and told that family to be quiet were.

I was raised on my family's fourth-generation farm in Watervliet, where the work started before sunrise and nobody waited on a bureaucracy for permission to get the job done. That's the Michigan that built this state. The Lansing Democrats who wrote the mandates forgot those people existed, but last week, the House gave them their voice back.

The fight isn't finished. Project Lighthouse now moves to the Senate, and the same crowd that built this mess and profits from it will fight to keep it.

But for the first time in a long time, Michigan chose the people who keep the lights on over the politicians who nearly turned them off.

State Rep. Pauline Wendzel
Chairwoman, Michigan House Energy Committee

Whitmer transitioned state into dumpster file

Dear Editor,
As Governor Whitmer is packing up to vacate our Governor's mansion, she appears to be competing with every other progressive governor in the nation to see how much damage she can inflict before leaving office. Depending on the study, Michigan's 2025-26 K-12 education system is nationally ranked between 37th to 44th. The American Legislative Exchange Council publishes an annual review of states ranking the economic competitiveness of states based on differences in tax rates, minimum wage laws, liability costs and other state policy metrics. According to their 2026 report, from the time Whitmer took office in 2019, Michigan has dropped from a national ranking of 12th to 32nd. Remember we only have 50 states. Since 2019 the Whitmer regime has approved nearly $2.5B in corporate subsidies. Many of these companies never got off the ground and of those that did roughly only 22% of the promised jobs have been realized with the vast majority of these jobs providing less than Michigan's median wage.
Just when you think we can't be any more disappointed in our state government we have a nonpartisan effort to impose a truly authoritarian package of bills that will provide Lansing the mandate to control local community planning and zoning. In the past few years, politicians in Lansing have absolutely gutted our local zoning and community planning. With majorities in both chambers, Democrats passed a law two years ago that removed most local authority pertaining to wind and solar installations. Then with the addition of data centers and marijuana stores, the quality of hometown life in Michigan has taken a significant nosedive.

But now, to join in Michigan's race to the bottom both Democrats and some Republicans in the Michigan House of Representatives want to pass a whole raft of new laws that would create a one-size fits all solution to deprive our communities the autonomy to create or enforce local zoning.

These bills amend the current Michigan Zoning Enabling Act by introducing new definitions and provisions related to accessory dwelling units (ADUs) and single-wide mobile homes, duplexes and triplexes. In essence allowing them in any residential zone with few restrictions. Home setbacks will be greatly reduced resulting in houses placed much closer together while allowing houses as small as 500 square feet and building lots as small as 1500 square feet anywhere public water and sewer are available.
To contribute to this assault on Michigan citizens, one House Republican has proposed a bill amending the Michigan Health Code that would provide a temporary housing solution by allowing longer campground stays, which currently limits campground living for up to six months. This is despite the concern by state regulators that warn longer stays could violate public health rules.
With the typical hypocrisy we have come to expect from Lansing, Whitmer has spent $261 million of our tax dollars on site preparation at the Mundy mega site that spans about 1,300 acres in Genesee County. That money was spent, in part, on buying residents out of their homes, some unwillingly, and then demolishing 43 homes for a project that never came to fruition. This doesn't sound like affordable housing is her top priority after all.
There are many factors impacting affordable housing in Michigan and nationally but they do not include those items listed above. As with too many government programs with the appearance of honorable intent, the Michigan Statewide Housing Plan is another corporate welfare initiative steeped in social justice initiatives. The plan explicitly calls for extending rental support to "refugees, immigrants, and migrants" as part of its long-term housing stability strategy. As with far too many federal and state programs this is just another opportunity for the laundering of tax dollars without benefitting the middle class and those American citizens in need of affordable housing.
The Michigan Statewide Housing Plan is bankrolled by Michigan taxpayers, including many that struggle to pay their own mortgages as well as their bloated property taxes. Such short-sighted programs only benefit progressive policies and a few select groups and privileged individuals. Michigan is still not building enough homes for regular Michiganders. Yet Lansing allows local as well as out of state and international investors to purchase existing single-family homes to then market as rental properties and short-term rentals. This artificially inflates property values and significantly depletes once affordable housing.
For the last century Americans have been protecting the integrity of our local communities with the 1926 U.S. Supreme Court decision from Village of Euclid v. Ambler Realty Co. which established the constitutionality of community zoning. In less than eight short years, Whitmer has transitioned our once great prosperous state into one more blue state dumpster fire. So, to add to her professional resume it appears that she, with the support of some disappointing Republicans, can include not only the devastation of our property values but the ruin of local community sustainability.
Thank you.
John R. Young

Reporter gets a lesson for a novice racetrack driver

By James Windell

When Dana Hullinger invited me to the GingerMan Raceway for the CGI High Performance Training event on Monday, May 11, 2026, my expectations were that I would attend a class, watch some drivers race around the track, and maybe talk to a few people who attended the event.

However, CGI Motorsports Chief Instructor Brad Pines and Dana Hullinger, a driving instructor and former race car driver, had something more planned for me.

"We're going to get you out on the track early," said Brad Pines when I first met him.

"I assume you've never driven a car on a racetrack, right?" Brad Pines said to me.

"Great assumption," I replied.

When Dana told the novice class that was receiving tips from Pines that he and I would be first out on the track when novices were scheduled to use the racecourse at 9:40 am, he said they could look out for us in a Black Honda Accord HR-V.

Not exactly a high-performance vehicle.

Everyone else had Porsches, Mustangs, BMW M3s, Camaros, and Mazda Miatas. I didn't see any other Hondas.

"Do you mind if I drive your car," Dana said as we walked to my Honda. "You can pay attention better if you're a passenger rather than a driver."

No problem. I did not want to be driving my Honda on a racetrack with guys with high-powered vehicles trying to pass me. I could imagine myself driving along at 35 mph while guys in Porsches were pushing 140 mph and hugging my taillights.

The first thing Dana said as we buckled up as he pushed the button to start my engine was: "We need to get the windows down. That's for safety so first responders can have access to us more easily after an accident."

That was reassuring. By all means I wanted first responders to get to my broken and bleeding body.

"In older race cars," Dana said after looking at me taking deep breaths, "open windows also helped reduce concerns about asphyxiation from unmuffled and short exhausts."

Oh, cool, I thought. That's another thing we don't have to worry about.

Driving in the entry lane, Dana waited until given permission to enter the track. He began narrating almost immediately, giving me tips that I could use when I drove on the track.

"Stay on the correct side of the white blend line," he said, "in order to keep separation from faster cars already on the racing line."

When we passed yellow flags, he reminded me that yellow meant caution but since this was the first lap it also meant no passing. He showed me the hand signal for pitting: arm out the window with a closed fist to indicate committing to pit-in so other drivers can safely pass.

Dana's coaching helped me get a sense of what various things meant along the racetrack. Such as the white sticks that are braking markers, cones and pavement patches as reference points.

"A core habit," he said, "is to keep your eyes up and look one to two steps ahead. You should visually transition from a near reference, like a cone, to a far target – the next cone."

He demonstrated several times on the 2.14 mile track the "Momentum approach." "Take wide arcs and big radii to be gentler on the car and carry more speed," he said.

And he pointed out common novice mistakes – like turning too early, especially on faster approaches, causing the car to run wide, which can land you and your car off the track in the sand.

As Dana reached speeds in my Honda that I rarely attain on the highway, I thought about what my explanation would be to the Honda Dealership after my lease car crashed during our 10 laps around the course.

"It wasn't my fault; a race driver borrowed my car without permission."

"I didn't know I was on a racecourse and I had a slight mishap – trying to navigate a curve at 100 miles per hour."

"How did I know this HR-V wasn't designed for a racetrack?"

Fortunately, I didn't have to use any of these.

When we pulled off the course safely, Dana asked if I was ready to take the wheel for a few laps on the track.

"I don't think I'm ready yet," I confessed. He seemed to understand.

What I didn't tell him was that I didn't really think I would ever be ready. I am quite content to limit my thrills to typing 60 words a minute, thank you.

Two recognized with South Haven schools pride awards

Pride Award Winner Kayleen May

By James Windell

A North Shore Elementary fifth grade student and a Baseline Middle School Success Coach were recognized at the May 13, 2026 Board of Education meeting with Pride Awards.

Kayleen Ruiz, the North Shore student, was praised by Mr. French, her classroom teacher, as a girl who consistently demonstrates kindness, respect, compassion, and a strong commitment to learning.

She was singled out as a positive role model with a mature, calm, quiet demeanor that contributes to a welcoming classroom environment. Kayleen is said to be known for her steady positivity, her thoughtfulness, and for putting forth her best effort. She participates actively in class discussions and read-alouds – and does both with confidence and enthusiasm.

It was noted that she also plays saxophone in the 5th grade band, showing dedication and responsibility in that role as well.

The second Pride Award was handed out to Brooke Marley, the Success Coach at Baseline Middle School.

Although she couldn't attend the awarding of her plaque, she was recognized as a staff member known for a calm, kind, soft-spoken demeanor and consistently going above and beyond.

Marley was described as a person who steps in to support wherever needed – and does so without hesitation. She also greets students and staff in the morning and helps ensure students safely load buses at the end of the day. In addition, she provides consistency and support throughout the day, especially during lunch and recess. She manages a caseload of students with dedication, supporting academic growth and preparation for 8th grade and transition to high school.

Finally, Marley was praised for her commitment, her reliability, and her genuine investment in student success.

South Haven holds hearing on 2026-2027 budget

By James Windell

After previous Committee of the Whole and South Haven City Council discussions, the proposed Fiscal Year (FY) 2026–27 City Council priorities and the FY 2026-2027 budget were back on the agenda at the regular meeting of the City Council on May 18, 2026.

The priorities were restated to reflect what staff believed council wanted – including an added emphasis on urgent care and expanding medical facilities.

The City Council members discussed needing a formal motion and vote for adopting the City Council priorities. However, a procedural mix-up occurred when an initial motion referenced both adopting priorities and holding a public hearing for the budget. Mayor Annie Brown clarified that the public hearing was a separate item. When the initial combined motion for the priorities and the public hearing were withdrawn, a new motion was made by David Flack and seconded by Eddie Polk. The priorities were adopted by a unanimous vote.

The council then approved a separate motion to open the required public hearing on the FY 2026–27 budget. City Manager Kate Hosier emphasized that the council would not adopt the budget at this meeting. Adoption would be on the agenda at the first City Council meeting in June. The City Finance Director, Michelle Argue, noted that the City has held multiple budget-related sessions: capital improvement review, two budget workshops, and a strategic planning session.

When the public hearing was opened, Mayor Brown invited public comment and questions regarding the budget, but there were no members of the public that chose to comment. The council moved to close the public hearing.

Following the brief public hearing, council members asked questions of the City Manager and the Finance Director. Council member Mary Hosley asked whether a more defined budget would be available by budget approval time for the lifeguard program. Hosier responded by saying that the final amount was still uncertain but noted equipment purchases have already been made. Hosier went on to say that they are using the beach parking fund (and reserves) to cover costs and hope changes to the parking resolution and fees will increase revenue, though projections remain uncertain.

Hosley also requested that in the interests of transparency that future budgets ungroup legal fees from general contractual fees to show legal spending by each City department. Hosier replied that they did not plan to change the grouping, citing how the software they use structures the categories. She noted that legal costs are allocated to particular funds and can be project specific. Hosley reiterated her concern, citing legal fees nearing $500,000 and wanting clarity on which departments drive costs.

The FY 2026-2027 budget will be back on thew age3nbda for the June 1, 2026, City Council meeting.

On Saturday, May 16, 2026, the biggest fish caught was a 16.34-pound fish by Team Utopia. The next day, Team Kick'r topped that with a 19.32-pound fish.

That was just part of the excitement of the South Haven Steelheaders' 41st Annual South Haven Pro Am presented by The Lodge restaurant.

Starting on Friday, May 15, Rich Chapman, President of the South Haven Steelheaders, said that seven boats entered the ladies/youth event.

"The Ladies & Youth Tournament is a new event for us this year," Chapman said. He explained that one of the main rules of this event is that ladies or youth must do all the rod work during the tournament. The captain or mate may only set lines, net fish or help remove a rod from the holder, but they must immediately hand the rod off.

The Women's tournament winner was the boat Double Hook, whose captain is Mitch VantVoort. Denise Collins was the winning angler.

Chapman said that there were 23 boats who participated in the Jim and Cherie Bellman Memorial, which was also held on Saturday. First place in this event went to the boat Flat Out Two, with Best Chance Two coming in second. For the first-place finish, Flat Out Two was awarded a check for $2,280.00.The big fish award was captured by Dave Engel, in Best Chance Two, as he landed a 17.7 pound lake trout.

The primary purpose of the South Haven Pro-Am Tournament is to obtain fish for the Annual Blueberry Festival Fish Boil held in August, which is the South Haven Steelheaders' biggest fundraiser. This fundraiser provides money to achieve the goal of educating the general public on improving, preserving and promoting sport fishing in The Great Lakes and their tributary streams and rivers.

According to Jayme Hinz, President of the South Haven Steelheaders Sport Fishing Association, Team Utopia took home the win in the Saturday Shootout event. Team Utopia was presented with a check of $14,4000 for the win.

She also said that the winner of the Pro division of the Pro-Am Tournament was the boat Best Chance Too. The winners in this event were awarded $6,000. On the Amateur side, the winning boat was Liquid Therapy, which received a check for $5,000.

With the many boats and anglers participating in this year's tournament, there should be plenty of fish for the fish boil in August.

Hinz noted that this year's tournament was designed differently than the tournament in the past. "We had a different format by splitting Saturday into an Open Division Shootout and then Sunday into the traditional Pro/Am Split Divisional Shootout," she said. "We are looking forward to hearing feedback from the participants to decide what we do in future years."

WiredCat Robotics team continues strong showing

WiredCat Robotics
FRC Team 5675

WireCat Robotics is a community team based in Mattawan. We are very fortunate to work out of Tri-Mation Industries, a small, local manufacturer. This has been a wonderful partnership between the company and the team.

The WiredCats had another incredible year. We went to two qualifying events; one held at Lakeview High School and the other at Battle Creek Central High School. With solid performances at each event, the WiredCats earned their way to the Michigan State Championship held at SVSU.

The team ended the season in a respectable 68th place out of over 530 teams in the state. Our overall performance qualified us to compete at the FIRST World Championship held in Houston, TX. However, for various reasons, the WiredCats declined the invitation. This was our fourth year in a row earning our way to the championship.

Here is an overview of each event.

Lakeview High School (March 5-7; week 1 of competitions)

- 6th place (out of 38 teams) at the end of qualifying matches.
- Captain of the 4th Alliance for playoff rounds.
- Eliminated in the quarterfinals.
- Received the Quality Award.

- Battle Creek Central High School (March 27-29; week 4 of competitions)
- 6th place (out of 39 teams) at the end of qualifying matches.
- First pick of the 2nd Alliance for playoff rounds.
- Eliminated in the finals.
- Received the Industrial Design Award.
- Michigan State Championship (April 16-18)
- Competed on the Hemlock Semiconductor field.
- 26th place (out of 41 teams) at the end of qualifying matches.
- Second pick of the 3rd Alliance for playoff rounds.
- Eliminated in the semifinal.

Mark came from Elk Grove Village, Illinois on a recent Monday for the excitement.

"It's exciting and I like the thrill of driving fast on a controlled track," says Mark, who brought his 2013 Subaru Impresa WRX to the GingerMan Raceway in South Haven. "People want to drive fast on public roads, but this is the safer and the right place to do it."

As a novice racetrack driver, Mark sat through an orientation session and an instructional meeting for novices before going out on the track with an instructor for training. Even though he had attended a similar track day a couple of years ago, he was still considered a novice.

"I went out on the track when we were scheduled this morning and my car sounded strong at first but then a check engine light came on," Mark says. After leaving the track he worked on his car and he's hoping the problem is cleared up.

"Otherwise," he adds, "it could turn into a short day after my long drive here."

As he turns to look after his Subaru, Mark says: "I enjoy the adrenaline and I also like fixing and building cars. I love building something and then pushing it hard to see if it holds up."

Leah, who lives in Spring Lake, Michigan, just north of Grand Haven, came with her husband and a friend. By 10:00 am, she enjoyed her first ride on the track.

"We're not experts about cars," she says almost apologetically, "but it was so much fun."

Leah said they came to the CGI event because they won a school auction that promised a ride in a car on a racetrack.

"My grandfather had a Mustang and he worked for Ford," Leah says, "he used to do track test drives. He passed away about a year ago and being out on the track today brought up memories of him."

South Haven resident and former race car driver Dana Hullinger, who is also a CGI instructor, says that many participants who come to these Monday events at GingerMan Raceway own high-performance cars, like Porsches, Corvettes, and BMWs.

"They want to use them legally and safely at their limits – something that is not appropriate on public roads," Hullinger says. "People who come here for driving instruction range from ordinary people who want the thrills that come from driving fast around a track to aspiring racecar drivers and even some former racers who want most of the joy without the cost and hassle of maintaining a dedicated race car."

Hullinger points out that police departments sometimes use the GingerMan Raceway for specialized training, like pursuit driving and roadblocks.

"This is probably the fastest growing segment of the sport," explains Hullinger, "and CGI's mission is to provide a safe, fun and engaging day of high-performance driving instruction and coaching."

Phil Mirenda, the founder of CGI Motorsports, came across the GingerMan Raceway in the mid-1990s. He and some friends were looking for a track they could use for a reasonable amount of money. After discovering GingerMan, Mirenda started CGI Motorsports with the sole purpose of providing high performance driving enthusiasts with a ton of track time in a friendly, laid back, and safe environment. The emphasis is on high performance driver's education with an eye toward safety.

That was evident during the 8:30 am orientation session on Monday, May 11, 2026. CGI Motorsports' Chief Instructor Brad Pines conducted the initial orientation session.

"It's a beautiful day at the GingerMan; much warmer than we expected and we're going to have a lot of fun," Pines told the audience of mostly men who had registered for the training. He then showed a slide of rules: "Don't be that guy. Number two is play nice and number three is when someone is passing use a point-by."

Pines said that those who had been at a CGI event before already knew the culture of the organization and that "Our focus is not to make race car drivers of you, but it is recreational high-speed driving and high-performance driving for fun."

During his presentation, Pines emphasized that "We are all about auto racing – not competition. We depend on each other for a safe event."

The safety of drivers was reiterated often by Pines. As when he went over the goals for the assembled drivers: "Be Safe; Be Smooth (as a driver); and Have Fun."

After going over safety tips, Pines sent the drivers out to get acquainted with their instructors and to go out on the track.

Talking about the high-performance track events that CGI Motorsports holds monthly through October at GingerMan Raceway, Pines said that they are proud of their safety record.

"You are far safer driving on GingerMan Raceway during our CGI Motorsports track events than you are while driving around in traffic every day," he said. "We routinely exceed 100 mph several times on each lap of this two-mile-long road course but there are strictly enforced safety rules. In 29 years of running at GingerMan, we've never had a single incident of car-to-car contact."

He explained that GingerMan Raceway is a road course that is different than people may imagine. "GingerMan has 11 different corners in 2.14 miles, and not simply an oval like they would see in a NASCAR race," he said. "It's much more like the tracks driven on by Formula One drivers as seen in 'Drive to Survive' on Netflix."

And he points out that there is a practical side of learning to drive on the track. "Of course, it is something sports car enthusiasts do for recreation and as a challenge, but those skills do translate directly into making winter and slippery driving conditions far safer. High performance driving skills translate directly in safer handling of slippery conditions like we all face every single winter here in West Michigan," he said.

CGI Motorsports will have several High-Performance Track Events at GingerMan Raceway over the next few months. The next one is on June 1, 2026, and there will be one event every month through October, 2026.

A Tree Grows in Elkenburg Park

By James Windell

In an on-going effort to beautify South Haven's Elkenburg Park, the South Haven Garden Club was busy planting flowers and a tree last week.

According to Lisa Stegall, Publicity Chair for the Garden Club, several members braved the brisk winds on Wednesday, May 13, 2026, to add more beauty to the park.

"The South Haven Garden Club had a productive and successful chilly windy planting day at Elkenburg Park," notes Lisa Stegall. "I need to give a shout out to the following rock stars who braved the elements today to get our beautification project going for this season."

She said she is thankful for the efforts of Paula, Carol, Doris, Jody, Lisa and Lydia for sharing in the planting duties. The Club members not only planted a tree, but also an array of perennial flowers and a Lavender Twist Redbud tree. "These plantings are all part of the Garden Club's on-going beautification efforts around the community," Stegall said.

She added that once the flowers begin to bloom and a Garden Club placard is installed, a formal dedication will be planned and announced.

BLUEGILLS ON THE BEDS

JACK PAYNE

Payne is a member of OWAA (outdoor writers association of America). He is an avid outdoorsperson who enjoys fishing, hunting, hiking and cooking. This column will hopefully enhance your outdoor experiences. "While I may have some knowledge, I am very fortunate that I do know many true experts that share their knowledge with me," said Payne. "Together, hopefully we all can learn and experience more fun in the great outdoors."
Payne resides in southwest Michigan. His column will appear weekly in the Courier Leader/ Flashes.

Birds were chirping, and the voices of kids in play were heard. One moment, my bobber was there; the next time I looked, it was gone. Luckily for me, the bluegill did not spit out the bait.

Countless bluegills have fallen to a properly set-up bobber rig. Many youngsters had their first fishing experience with a bobber, and most likely it was a bluegill.

Caleb with a nice Bluegill

Locating spawning bluegill is perhaps ninety percent of the game. We cruise the shoreline, staying maybe eighty feet out. We use the side-scan transducer to search for areas that look like overlapping moon craters.

Bluegill beds will overlap, looking like a dinner plate. These beds can also be spotted while cruising the shoreline using your polarized sunglasses.

Lily pads hold plenty of bluegills, and on some lakes, they are the best spot. Lily pads are not my first choice, but on lakes with mud or muck and no sand, give the pads a chance.

Bluegills are not overly picky eaters. Worms, wax worms, or spikes will suffice. A properly balanced bobber will be at least sixty percent submerged. Use just enough split shots to balance the float.

Some anglers use a plain hook, others a teardrop. We opt for a teardrop with a size ten hook, our favorite. Tipping it with a wax worm reduces the number of bait-stealing fish. A small, dainty presentation is often inhaled.

A few dedicated anglers I know enjoy using a split-shot rig. With a split shot rig, a small hook or teardrop is used along with one split shot. Anglers cast this rig out, let it sink to the bottom, and then reel it in, maybe four inches at a time. An enjoyable way to fish.

Bluegills and fly rods go hand in hand. No fish offers a new fly angler a better opportunity at success than the bluegill. There was one trip where the fly line wrapped around me as if I s trying to become a mummy.

My favorite fly is either the old plain foam spider or the Bully Spider. The Bully Spider slowly sinks while the foam spider floats. Both re inexpensive to buy or super easy to tie yourself.

Pop, pop, pop, or maybe it's a gurgle, gurgle, gurgle sound. Regardless of the exact noise, a popper does just that. It makes a noise and a disturbance on the surface. And bluegills love it.

As good as the aforementioned fly baits are, a friend of mine makes a living, or at least way more than his share of bluegills using nothing more than a Black Gnat fly. He also uses a 2-weight fly rod.

These baits are so good that I use them year-round, with or without a fly rod. On the beds or in deep water, these fly baits really shine. You can use them under a float when the fish are on the beds.

The real Bully Spider is wrapped with a few strands of wire. It will slowly sink. The Black Gnat and the regular foam spider work great when a small split shot is added. So, you can fish these baits with a fly rod or without.

The mini two-hook spinner rig might be my favorite bluegill bait. I love casting, and with this mini worm harness spinner rig, you can fish it from a foot of water to over 30 feet for suspended fish.

When the bluegill are in the shallows, we cast this eight-harness spinner rig with no additional weight. Cast it out, close your reel, and let it slowly sink down.

Then start a slow retrieve and be prepared for a hard tap. The gills will slam this bait. One suggestion: do not use the skinny red worms; instead, look for a fat garden worm. My first choice is the Belgium worm.

Fishing the beds or shallow water is fun. Lots of action, easy to master, perfect for a family outing or for taking a first-timer out. If you like the thought of a fly rod for trout, try bluegills on a light-weight fly rod. And remember to stop by Bob's Gun and Tackle Shop.

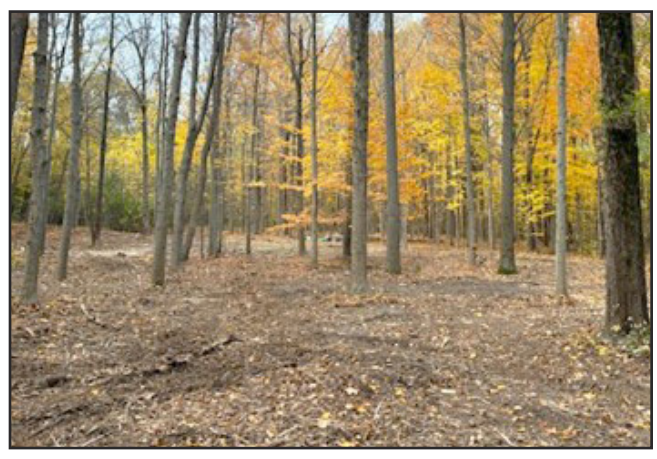
New South Haven Dog Park Receives State Matching Grant Program

The South Haven Bark Park at Riverwoods has received a significant boost from the Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MEDC) as it seeks to conclude its capital campaign for that park development by mid-July of 2026.

New public spaces across Michigan are being created with the support of the Public Spaces Community Places (PSCP) crowdgranting program. The MEDC has announced eight PSCP projects for the spring and summer of 2026, including the South Haven Bark Park at Riverwoods. Every dollar given to the campaign at patronicity.com/SHBarkPark will be matched during the 60-day appeal period from May 18 through July 17, 2026. If the new South Haven Bark Park receives $50,000 during this period, it will win a $50,000 matching grant from the MEDC with funds made possible through the PSCP program.

"The opportunity that the MEDC crowdgranting program is offering to our effort to develop the new South Haven dog park is significant," said local project director Robert Linstrom. "Since the late fall of 2025, the South Haven area community has responded with enthusiasm to our grass roots effort to raise $180,000 to fully fund the new South Haven Bark Park at Riverwoods. This MEDC matching grant program will take us over the top as we develop the new Bark Park in the spring and summer of 2026."



The South Haven Dog Park is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation that has teamed up with the South Haven Area Recreation Authority (SHARA) to transform five acres of the emerging Riverwoods Recreation Park into a beautifully wooded and fully fenced-in free municipal dog park. The Bark Park site has been prepared, the fenceline has been marked, and work is underway on the excavation, water hookups, installation of deluxe dog water stations and more in preparation for the fencing phase of the project in the weeks ahead. The Bark Park at Riverwoods will be a combination of open areas for dogs to run and a beautifully wooded campus for both our large and small dog park areas.

"Not only do these placemaking projects transform underutilized space but they create well-loved and well-used public spaces for generations to come, resulting in more vibrant communities across the state," said Paula Holtz, MEDC Managing Director Regional Development "We are proud to provide resources for these efforts through our Public Spaces Community Places program."
